What is a digital nomad visa?

A digital nomad earns online and can live anywhere with a laptop and an internet connection. A digital nomad visa (sometimes called a remote work visa) lets you live in another country for an extended period, usually one to two years and often renewable, while you keep working for employers or clients elsewhere.

Why people choose one

- Live legally abroad for longer than a tourist visa allows, while you keep your remote income.
- Bring your family: many programs let a spouse and children join you.
- Earn in stronger currencies such as dollars, pounds or euros, wherever you live.
- A possible stepping stone: in some countries, time on a remote work visa can lead to longer-term residence. Rules differ, so always check.

What almost every country asks for

1. Proof of remote work or clients outside the country, and 2. a steady monthly income above a set minimum. In other words: a valuable digital skill, and someone paying you for it.

That second requirement is where most people get stuck. Which brings us to the skill that solves it.

Why digital & AI marketing is the most practical path

Relocation costs money: visa fees, flights, deposits, health cover and the months it takes to settle. You need an income that moves with you. Digital and AI marketing gives you one.

the work of a small team

It funds the move

Because the skill is in demand worldwide, you aren't limited to local salaries. You can earn in stronger currencies while you live anywhere.

It keeps paying while you settle

You don't need to find a local job after you land. Your income continues without a break, which is exactly what visa officers want to see.

It scales

With AI-powered tools you can serve more clients without more hours, so your income can grow as your new life does.

A skill alone won't win an employer's or client's trust. Five things will.

An employer in another country has never met you. Before they trust you with their budget and their brand, they need proof. Most people stop after learning a skill, then wonder why nobody replies to their applications.

01 Skills	02 Credentials	03 Experience	04 Portfolio	05 Positioning
Skills	Hands-on, AI-powered marketing you can actually deliver.
Credentials	A qualification recognised abroad, so you're trusted before the interview.
Experience	Real work for a real company, ideally one in the U.S., UK or Europe.
Portfolio	Results an employer can see in 30 seconds.
Positioning	A CV, profile and pitch that make you the obvious choice.

The "no experience, no job; no job, no experience" loop is the biggest barrier for people outside the U.S. and Europe. The path on the next pages is built to break it.

The 5-step path, from skills to visa

Learn one in-demand skill, hands-on

Choose a focused track rather than trying to learn everything. Look for training that is mostly practice (around 90%), uses AI tools, and gives you a coach when you get stuck.

Earn a credential employers recognise

A certificate from an unknown provider won't open doors abroad. Look for accreditation you can verify, such as a provider listed on the UK Register of Learning Providers.

Gain real experience with a foreign company

This is the step most people skip, and the one employers care about most. A project internship with a U.S. company, with a real marketing budget, gives you results to show and a reference employers can verify.

Land a remote job or international clients

Turn your work into a portfolio, rewrite your CV and LinkedIn for international roles, and practise interviews and client pitches. Apply daily, and treat it like a project with a deadline.

Earn steadily, then apply for your visa

Once you have a regular income that meets your chosen country's minimum, gather your contracts and bank statements and apply. Many programs let your family join you.

05 · WHAT IT CAN LOOK LIKE

An example of $3,500 a month

INCOME SOURCE	PER MONTH
Full-time remote role, e.g. a social media or paid ads specialist	$3,000
One freelance retainer client	$500
Total	$3,500

This is a hypothetical illustration, not a promise. Pay depends on your skills, experience, the employer and the market. Visa income minimums vary by country.

Questions people ask before applying

I have no marketing experience. Can I do this?

Yes. Every track starts from zero. If you can use email and social media, you can start, and your coach walks you through anything you get stuck on.

How much time do I need?

Plan for 10 to 15 hours a week. Most students are working professionals, business owners or parents, and they study at times that suit them.

Is the U.S. Project Internship paid?

No. It is an unpaid, project-based internship that runs alongside your training, not a job offer. Our U.S. partner company provides the marketing budget, and you leave with results for your portfolio and a verified work reference letter.

How does the 65% scholarship work?

Apply, and we review your answers. If you are accepted, you are awarded a 65% partial scholarship with a date to enrol by. Places are limited by the internship projects available.

Will this guarantee me a job or a visa?

No one can honestly guarantee that. We give you the skills, credentials, experience and coaching employers look for. Visa decisions are made by each country's authorities.

Can I pay in my own currency?

Yes. Pay by card, Apple Pay or Google Pay, Paystack, or mobile money, depending on your country.

What a country actually asks for Every country sets its own rules. Here are two popular European examples for a remote worker in 2026:

	PORTUGAL (D8 VISA)	SPAIN (DIGITAL NOMAD VISA)
Income, single	€3,680 a month (gross)	€2,849 a month
How it's set	4 × Portugal's minimum wage	200% of Spain's minimum wage
Family	+€460 partner, +€276 per child	+€916 first dependant, +€305 each extra
Family of three	€4,416 a month	€4,070 a month
You'll also need	Proof of remote work or client contracts, bank statements, health insurance, a clean criminal record and somewhere to live.

Figures for 2026, based on each country's minimum wage, so they rise when the minimum wage does.

The takeaway: the visa itself is the easy part. The hard part is a steady income of around €3,000 to €4,500 a month, which is exactly what in-demand digital and AI marketing skills can lead to.
